

THE EMORY LAW JOURNAL

EDITORIAL BOARD

Editor-in-Chief

Nathan I. North

Executive Articles Editor

Bethany Nelson

Executive Managing Editors

Jennifer Craig
Molly B. Haren
Ariel Winawer
Grace Zoller

Executive Notes & Comments Editor

Caryn Wang

Executive Symposium Editor

Matthew Ady

Executive Marketing Editor

Amanda R. Goodhart

Executive Online Editor

Jin Hyung Lee

Articles Editors

Josiah Garton
Jason Hyatt
Amanda R. Schwarzenbart
Richard Walker
Hampton Watson
Nora Xu

Managing Editors

Rubinder Bal
Natalie Bunnell
Jason Crofts
Jacob L. Harris
Kathleen E. Horne
Daniel Ledesma
Philip E. Olsen
Benjamin M. Popeck
Laura M. Snider

Notes & Comments Editors

Seena Forouzan
Alexandra Gioseffi
Shelby L. Hancock
Rachel Leff
Brent Lightfoot
Casey McGowan
Micah Rappazzo
Jeffrey Schacknow

Symposium Editors

Cassandra Coolidge
Emily Prasad

Online Editors

Charlotte E. Courtade
Craig W. Creeden
Aalia Taufiq

CANDIDATES FOR THE BOARD

Sydney Altman
Allison B. Bailey
Mary Christine Brady
Brittany S. Brown
Matthew K. Brown
Ian J. Busche
Lesley Chen
Chloe Cobb
Alexandra Conn
Matthew P. Demartini
Karla M. Doe
Lucille Gauthier
Nadia J. Hajji

Chelsie Holler
Kyle P. Hunter
D. Bruce Janzen, Jr.
Deyvid V. Madzharov
Skylr K. Martucci
Riley A. McDaniel
Janiel Myers
Michelle T. Nussbaum
Fiona O'Carroll
Ariel Olson
Damiya Park
Jonathan Pickett
Rebecca Reiman

Caleb J. Robertson
Jenine A. Rossington
Sangita V. Sahasranaman
Brian J. Saling
Robert D. Sherrier
Caleb Small
Spencer Stephens
Jesse Sutz
Talia Wagner
Megan L. Whitman
Caleah N. Whitten
Christina R. Zeidan

FACULTY ADVISORS

Polly J. Price
Richard D. Freer

THE EMORY LAW JOURNAL

Presents

THE 2017 RANDOLPH W. THROWER SYMPOSIUM

MINDING THE GAP:

LAW and PRACTICE in PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCIES

Thursday, February 2, 2017

EMORY UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

EMORY | LAW

CELEBRATING A CENTURY of ADVANCING
the RULE of LAW

RANDOLPH W. THROWER

---

on its 75th anniversary, and the Coverdell Good Government Award. In 2008 Thrower was honored by the Fulton County Daily Report, which described him as a “Living Legend of the Law.”

Thrower passed away at the age of 100 in March of 2014. The Emory Law Journal and Emory University School of Law are privileged to honor his memory and accomplishments by continuing to host this Symposium which bears his name and whose success results from his contributions and support.

The Emory Law Journal thanks the members of the Thrower Symposium Committee: Patricia Barmeyer, Wilson G. Barmeyer, Judge Frank Hull, Joseph Blanco, Dean Robert Schapiro, Professor Julie Seaman, and Professor Charles Shanor for their support of the Symposium.

We also thank Vice Dean Robert B. Ahdieh, Amy Tozer, Beth Damon, Rhonda Heermans, Alyssa Ashdown, Amy Marcellana, and Carletta Gunby for their invaluable assistance and fortitude. Finally, we thank Professor Ani Satz who was instrumental in developing this year’s symposium topic.

RANDOLPH W. THROWER was a leader in virtually every endeavor of his long and active life, which included a remarkable legal career, a dedication to public service, and a devotion to Emory University.

Thrower graduated from Emory University (BPh 1934; JD 1936, first honors). He joined the law firm of Sutherland, Tuttle & Brennan in 1936, practiced in the firm's Atlanta and Washington offices, and was proud to be a partner at Sutherland until his death. During World War II he served in the FBI as a special agent (1942–1943) and as captain in the United States Marine Corps, with overseas service in the Philippines and Okinawa (1944–1945). He returned to the firm and practiced primarily in the area of federal taxation, including tax controversies, litigation, estate planning and administration, and general corporate and individual tax related matters.

From 1969 to 1971 Thrower served as commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service. In that position he worked through many high-profile and contentious issues, including the development of a policy to deny tax-exempt status for private schools that discriminate on the basis of race. But the most difficult issues were not visible to the public. Thrower steadfastly refused efforts by the Nixon White House to misuse the IRS and, as a result, was directed by the president to resign. He quietly returned to the practice of law; only after the Watergate hearings did he understand what he had been dealing with and speak publicly of his experiences. Thrower's integrity, courage, and fairness in these and other matters were widely recognized and applauded.

Thrower was president of the American Bar Foundation, the research arm of the ABA, and served for ten years on its executive committee. He was Chair of the ABA's Section on Taxation and served in the ABA House of Delegates for seventeen years. He was a member of the ABA Commission on Women in the Profession from its inception in 1987 until 1993, and was chair of the State Bar Committee on the Involvement of Women and Minorities in the Profession. He was one of the founders and the first president of the Court of Federal Claims Bar Association. He was a founding trustee, in 1963, of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. He was also president of the Atlanta Bar Association, the Lawyers Club of Atlanta, and the Atlanta Legal Aid Society. From 1980 to 1992 he served as chair of the City of Atlanta's Board of Ethics and was co-chair of an investigation into allegations of cheating on police promotion exams. Well into his nineties he was chair of the Georgia Wilderness Institutes, which provide alternatives to incarceration for criminally-delinquent youth.

In 1993 the ABA awarded him the American Bar Association Medal, its highest honor, for exceptionally distinguished service by a lawyer to the cause of American jurisprudence. Thrower received many other accolades, including honorary degrees from Emory University (1984) and Wesleyan College (2006), the American Inns of Court Professionalism Award for the Eleventh Circuit, the Leadership Award of the Atlanta Bar Association, the Founders Award of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, the Lifetime Anti-Defamation League Achievement Award, a special tribute from the Atlanta Legal Aid Society

MINDING THE GAP:

LAW and PRACTICE in PUBLIC HEALTH EMERGENCIES

8:00-8:50 a.m.	BREAKFAST AND REGISTRATION , Hunter Atrium
9:00-9:15 a.m.	WELCOMING REMARKS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Robert Schapiro, Dean, Asa Griggs Candler Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law</li> <li>• Nathan I. North, Editor in Chief, Emory Law Journal</li> <li>• Matthew Ady, Executive Symposium Editor, Emory Law Journal</li> </ul>
9:15-10:15 a.m.	KEYNOTE ADDRESS: Lawrence O. Gostin , University Professor, Georgetown University Law Center, Founding Linda D. & Timothy J. O'Neill Professor of Global Health Law, Faculty Director, O'Neill Institute for National & Global Law, and Director, World Health Organization Collaborating Center on Public Health Law & Human Rights
10:15-10:30 a.m.	Break
10:30 a.m.-12 p.m.	PANEL I: Defining the Gap: Theoretical Versus Lived Experiences
12:00-1:00 p.m.	LUNCH , Hunter Atrium
1:00-2:30 p.m.	PANEL II: The Widening Gap: Identifying Causative Issues in Public Health Emergencies
2:30-2:45 p.m.	Break
2:45-4:15 p.m.	PANEL III: Bridging the Gap: Legal and Technological Innovation
4:15-4:30 p.m.	CONCLUDING REMARKS: Matthew Ady
4:30-6:00 p.m.	RECEPTION , Hunter Atrium

MINDING THE GAP: Law and Practice in Public Health Emergencies

will explore the distinction between the theoretical and lived experiences of individuals during public health emergencies. How to improve response time and quality to better represent all individuals in a public health emergency is a profoundly legal question. This year's symposium will draw attention to this gap in healthcare by first defining the gap, then identifying causative factors of the gap, before finally proposing solutions to close the gap and provide a more holistic healthcare regime. Recent developments in the field of global health law relating to the Ebola and Zika outbreaks demonstrate an acute need for organized and thoughtful discussions on the role of law in public health emergencies. This year's symposium features a diverse group of qualified scholars and experts, and we hope that their opinions and perspectives will create an opportunity for stimulating dialogue on the future of global health law.

8:00-8:50 a.m.	BREAKFAST AND REGISTRATION , Hunter Atrium
9:00-9:15 a.m.	WELCOMING REMARKS <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Robert Schapiro, Dean, Asa Griggs Candler Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law</li> <li>• Nathan I. North, Editor in Chief, Emory Law Journal</li> <li>• Matthew Ady, Executive Symposium Editor, Emory Law Journal</li> </ul>
9:15-10:15 a.m.	KEYNOTE ADDRESS, Lawrence O. Gostin , University Professor, Georgetown University Law Center, Founding Linda D. &amp; Timothy J. O'Neill Professor of Global Health Law, Faculty Director, O'Neill Institute for National &amp; Global Law, and Director, World Health Organization Collaborating Center on Public Health Law &amp; Human Rights
10:30 a.m.-12 p.m.	PANEL I: Defining the Gap: Theoretical Versus Lived Experiences <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Captain Martin Cetron, Director, Division of Global Migration and Quarantine at the National Center for Emerging and Zoonotic Infectious Diseases Professor</li> <li>• Leslie Meltzer Henry, Professor of Law, University of Maryland Francis Carey School of Law and Core Faculty at Johns Hopkins Berman Institute of Bioethics</li> <li>• Ani B. Satz, Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law; Professor of Public Health, Rollins School of Public Health; Affiliated Professor, Goizueta Business School; Senior Faculty Fellow, Center for Ethics</li> </ul> Moderator: Polly J. Price , Associate Dean of Faculty and Professor of Law, Professor of Global Health, Emory University School of Law
12:00-1:00 p.m.	LUNCH , Hunter Atrium

Yale Law Journal and Yale Law & Policy Review. Morley received his AB, magna cum laude, from Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public & International Affairs, and received his JD from Yale Law School. While at Yale Law School, Morley served as the senior editor on the Yale Law Journal, served on the moot court board, and received the Thurman Arnold Prize for Best Oralist in the Morris Tyler Moot Court of Appeals.

LIZA VERTINSKY,
Associate Professor of Law,
Emory University School of Law

Professor Liza Vertinsky's areas of expertise include intellectual property, innovation, the intersection of IP and global health, and law and economics. Vertinsky builds on a practical background of assisting entrepreneurs, emerging companies, and universities with strategic issues involving the development, acquisition, and leveraging of intellectual property to address contemporary issues involving IP licensing and technology transfer. Her research program is motivated by a deep interest in how legal rules, particularly patent law and contract law, influence the ways in which individuals and groups organize their economic activities.

While at Emory, Vertinsky has focused her research primarily on how patent laws and policies impact the organization of economic activities in ways that either facilitate or impede innovation. Particularly, she is interested in exploring the institutional environments in which alternative forms of intellectual production take place. She has a strong interest in the intersection of intellectual property and global health and development. She has helped to develop Emory's global health law and policy project, which incorporates both curriculum, scholarship, and partnership building around contemporary issues of global health law. Vertinsky is also affiliated with Emory's Vulnerability Project, where she explores the connection between innovation and vulnerability and the roles that intellectual property can and/or does play in addressing or impeding access to health and economic development.

Vertinsky received her JD from Harvard Law School, her MA in economics from the University of British Columbia, and PhD in economics from Harvard University. She clerked for Judge Stanley Marcus, first for the US District Court in the Southern District of Florida and then for the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

property; grants regulations and policies; and collaborations with non-governmental partners. Stettner also provides training and education to CDC employees on legal issues affecting the agency and public health law. She has published in the Emory International Law Review and regularly guest lectures at Emory Law.

HAMID JAFARI, MD,
*Principal Deputy Director,
Center for Global Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)*

Hamid Jafari was recently appointed as the principal deputy director in the Center for Global Health. He is currently acting as the director of the Division of Global Health Protection and will return to his role as principal deputy when the division director is selected.

Jafari served as the main technical advisor to the Government of India in the implementation of polio eradication and other immunization activities. He directs the WHO's extensive network of nearly 1000 field personnel, including more than 300 surveillance medical officers, who are instrumental in providing technical and programmatic assistance to the government.

Jafari completed his residency training in pediatrics at Dartmouth Medical School and his pediatric infectious disease fellowship training at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School. Prior to his pediatrics training, Jafari completed a one-year research fellowship at Harvard Medical School. Jafari began his career in epidemiology and public health in 1992 and at the National Center for Infectious Diseases. He later worked at the National Immunization Program. He served as medical officer for polio eradication in the regional office of the WHO for Eastern Mediterranean from 1996 until 2002.

MICHAEL T. MORLEY,
Assistant Professor of Law, Barry University

Michael T. Morley has taught several classes at Barry University, including those covering evidence, election law, contracts, remedies, and constitutional law. He previously clerked for Judge Gerald Bard Tjoflat of the US Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit. Morley then joined Williams & Connolly LLP, in Washington DC as a commercial and appellate litigator. He received a Schedule C appointment in the administration of President George W. Bush to serve as special assistant to the general counsel of the Army. In that role, he provided advice to senior Army leaders concerning United States Supreme Court litigation, constitutional and international law, and congressional investigations. Morley also served as counsel for US Senate candidates before returning to private practice in the Supreme Court and Appellate Practice Group at Winston & Strawn LLP, in Washington DC. Morley was a Climenko Fellow and lecturer in law at Harvard Law School, where he taught legal research and writing and a seminar on election litigation and civil procedure.

Morley has successfully argued in state and federal appellate courts across the country. Specifically, he was counsel of record in the US Supreme Court for Shaun McCutcheon in the landmark First Amendment case McCutcheon v. FEC. In addition, he has represented several political parties, federal candidates, and voters in election and campaign finance lawsuits. Professor Morley's scholarship has been published in academic journals, including the Cardozo Law Review and University of Pennsylvania Journal of Constitutional Law, and while a student, he published several pieces in the

SYMPOSIUM OVERVIEW

1:00-2:30 p.m.

PANEL II: The Widening Gap: Identifying Causative Issues in Public Health Emergencies

- Mary Holland, Research Scholar and Director, Graduate Lawyering Program, New York University School of Law
- James M. Hughes, MD, Professor of Medicine and Public Health, Emory University School of Medicine
- James Misrahi, Attorney, Department of Health & Human Services, Office of the General Counsel, Public Health Division, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention
- Polly J. Price, Associate Dean of Faculty and Professor of Law, Professor of Global Health, Emory University School of Law

Moderator: Joanna Stettner, Senior Attorney, Department of Health & Human Services, Office of the General Counsel, Public Health Division, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

2:45-4:15 p.m.

PANEL III: Bridging the Gap: Legal and Technological Innovation

- Hamid Jafari, MD, Principal Deputy Director, Center for Global Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)
  - Michael Morley, Assistant Professor of Law, Barry University
  - Liza Vertinsky, Associate Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law
- Moderator: Ani B. Satz, Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law; Professor of Public Health, Rollins School of Public Health; Affiliated Professor, Goizueta Business School; Senior Faculty Fellow, Center for Ethics

4:15-4:30 p.m.

CONCLUDING REMARKS

- Matthew Ady, Executive Symposium Editor, Emory Law Journal

4:30-6:00 p.m.

RECEPTION, Hunter Atrium

SYMPOSIUM KEYNOTE ADDRESS

LAWRENCE O. GOSTIN, University Professor, Georgetown University Law Center; Founding Linda D. & Timothy J. O'Neill Professor of Global Health Law; Faculty Director, O'Neill Institute for National & Global Health Law; Director, World Health Organization Collaborating Center on Public Health Law & Human Rights

Lawrence O. Gostin is university professor, which is Georgetown University's highest academic rank conferred by the university president. Gostin directs the O'Neill Institute for National and Global Health Law and was the founding O'Neill chair in Global Health Law. He is professor of medicine at Georgetown University and professor of public health at the Johns Hopkins University. Gostin is also the director of the World Health Organization Collaborating Center on Public Health Law & Human Rights. The WHO director-general has appointed Gostin to high-level positions, including the International Health Regulations Roster of Experts and the Expert Advisory Panel on Mental Health. He served on the director-general's Advisory Committee on Reforming the World Health Organization, as well as numerous WHO expert advisory committees on Pandemic Influenza Preparedness Framework, smallpox, and genomic sequencing data. He is a member of the WHO/Global Fund Blue Ribbon Expert Panel, entitled The Equitable Access Initiative, to develop a global health equity framework.

Gostin serves on two global commissions to report on the lessons learned from the 2015 West Africa Ebola epidemic: Commission on a Global Health Risk Framework (National Academy of Sciences, supported by WHO, World Bank, Gates Foundation, and Rockefeller Foundation) and the Independent Panel on the Global Response to Ebola (Harvard University/London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine). Gostin holds numerous editorial appointments in leading academic journals throughout the world. His principal position is the health law and ethics editor, contributing writer, and columnist for the Journal of the American Medical Association. He is also founding editor-in-chief of Laws (an international open access law journal).

Gostin has led major law reform initiatives in the US, including the drafting of the Model Emergency Health Powers Act (MEHPA) to combat bioterrorism and the "Turning Point" Model State Public Health Act. He is also leading a drafting team for the World Health Organization and International Development Law Organization, Advancing the Right to Health Through Public Health Law. Gostin's proposal for a Framework Convention on Global Health—an international treaty ensuring the right to health—is now part of a global campaign endorsed by the UN secretary-general and director of UNAIDS. In a 2012 systematic empirical analysis of legal scholarship, independent researchers ranked Gostin first in the nation in productivity among all law professors and eleventh in impact and influence.

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

Microbiology, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has served on the Institute of Medicine/NAM Forum on Microbial Threats since 1996 and as vice-chair of the Forum since 2009. He is currently a member of the boards of directors of the American Academy of Microbiology, the One Health Commission, and the EcoHealth Alliance.

Hughes received his BA and MD from Stanford University and completed his postgraduate training and board certifications from: University of Washington (internal medicine), University of Virginia (infectious diseases), and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (preventative medicine). Prior to joining Emory in 2005, Hughes worked at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, serving as the director of the National Center for Infectious Diseases (NCID) and as a rear admiral and an assistant surgeon general in the US Public Health Service. Hughes served as director of the CDC's Hospital Infections Program from 1983 to 1988, as NCID deputy director from 1988 until 1992, and as NCID director from 1993 until 2005. Among Hughes' honors and awards are the Distinguished and Meritorious Service Medals and the Surgeon General's Exemplary Service Award from the US Public Health Service; the Secretary's Open Forum Distinguished Public Service Award from the Department of State; the CDC Lifetime Scientific Achievement Award; the Gen-Probe Joseph Award from the American Society for Microbiology for "exemplary leadership and service in the field of public health;" Jonathan M. Mann Lectureship Award from the Council of State and Territorial Epidemiologists; and the Bailey K. Ashford Memorial Lecturer at the University of Puerto Rico School of Medicine.

JAMES J. MISRAHI, JD, Office of the General Counsel, Department of Health and Human Services

Jim Misrahi has served as an attorney and legal advisor for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) since 2000. He advises the CDC in all matters relating to public health border protection, including legal authorities for quarantine and isolation, medical examinations for immigrants and refugees; International Health Regulations implementation and compliance; public health import permit requirements for animals and infectious biological agents; and air travel restrictions for public health. He has been published in the American Society of Law's Journal of Law, Medicine & Ethics; Journal of Emerging Infectious Diseases; and the Oxford publication Law in Public Health Practice. He has also been profiled in the Georgia Bar magazine and regularly guest lectures at Emory University School of Law and the Rollins School of Public Health.

JOANNA STETTNER, OOL, Senior Attorney with Health and Human Services, Office of the General Counsel, Public Health Division at the Center for Disease Control and Prevention

Joanna Stettner earned her undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan and her JD from Emory University School of Law. Joanna is a member of the Public Health Promotion and Information Legal Team and provides legal advice to the National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (NCCDPHP). She also provides guidance to the CDC on a wide variety of legal issues including: statutes and federal authorities affecting the CDC; intellectual

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

National Law Journal; Oregon Law Review; Harvard Law School Bill of Health Blog; and the Yale Journal of Health Policy, Law, and Ethics. Holland is the author of two books entitled Vaccine Epidemic: How Corporate Greed, Biased Science, and Coercive Government Threaten Our Human Rights, Our Health, and Our Children and Human Rights and Legal Reform in the Russian Federation.

Holland received her BA from Harvard University and her MA from Columbia University School of International Affairs. She received a certificate in Soviet Foreign Policy from Columbia University and her JD with honors from Columbia Law School. After graduating law school, Holland clerked for a federal district court judge. Prior to joining New York University School of Law, Holland worked for six years at major US law firms, with three years based in Moscow, Russia. She has also worked at a major US human rights advocacy organization as director of its European Program.

JAMES M. HUGHES, MD, Professor of Medicine, Professor of Public Health, Emory University, and Co-Director of the Emory Antibiotic Resistance Center

Before joining Emory University, James M. Hughes served as director to the Southeastern Center for Emerging Biological Threats, a group funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Recently, he served as principal investigator for evaluations of school-based strategies to increase immunization coverage in adolescents in the Georgia East Central Health District and a Gates Foundation-funded study to assess knowledge, attitudes, and practices of immunization providers in India. He is a member of the National Academy of Medicine and a fellow of the Infectious Diseases Society of America, the American Society of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene, the American Academy of

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

CAPT. MARTIN CETRON, MD, Director, Division of Global Migration and Quarantine at the National Center for Emerging and Zoonotic Infectious Diseases

Captain Martin (Marty) Cetron MD, has been with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) since 1992. There he has led several domestic and international outbreak investigations, conducted epidemiologic research, and has been involved in domestic and international emergency responses to provide medical screening and disease prevention programs to refugees prior to US resettlement. In addition, Cetron has held leadership roles in CDC responses to intentional and naturally acquired emerging infectious disease outbreaks, including the anthrax bioterrorism incident, the global SARS epidemic, the US monkeypox outbreak, and the H1N1 pandemic. Cetron's research interest is international health and global migration with a focus on emerging infections, tropical diseases, and vaccine-preventable diseases in mobile populations.

Cetron earned a BA from Dartmouth College and received his MD from Tufts University. Before becoming a commissioned officer in the US Public Health Service, he trained in internal medicine at the University of Virginia and in infectious diseases at the University of Washington. Cetron is also part of the CDC's Pandemic Influenza Planning and Preparedness Team, and he holds faculty appointments in the Division of Infectious Diseases at the Emory University School of Medicine and the Department of Epidemiology at Rollins School of Public Health.

LESLIE MELTZER HENRY, Professor of Law, University of Maryland Francis Carey School of Law and Core Faculty at Johns Hopkins Berman Institute of Bioethics

Professor Leslie Meltzer Henry has been part of the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law since 2008 and is also a core faculty member at the Johns Hopkins Berman Institute of Bioethics. Her teaching and scholarship focuses on many issues, including constitutional law, bioethics, public health law and policy, reproductive justice, and research ethics. Henry's scholarship has been published in peer-review medical journals and leading law reviews, including the New England Journal of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania Law Review, Michigan Law Review, Georgetown Law Journal, Journal of Law and the Biosciences, Journal of Law, Medicine, & Ethics, American Journal of Bioethics, Narrative Inquiry in Bioethics, and Journal of Health Care Law & Policy. In addition, Henry is an associate editor of the Oxford Handbook for Public Health Ethics (OUP, 2016), and a contributor to the Oxford Textbook of Clinical Research Ethics (OUP, 2008).

Henry provides expert commentary for federal and local agencies, organizations, and the media. Notably, she has served as a bioethics consultant to the Department of Defense and has presented before panels of the Department of Health and Human Services, the Food and Drug Administration, and the National Institutes of Health Bioethics Advisory Committee. Additionally, she has provided written commentary for the Mid-Atlantic Ethics Committee Network and has been quoted in several media outlets, including the Atlantic, the Wall Street Journal, CNN, ABC, NPR, the Chronicle of Higher Education, Forbes, and the Baltimore Sun. Henry is a co-investigator on a grant from the Wellcome Trust to develop ethical guidance for conducting research with pregnant women during public health emergencies. She is a member of PHASES, a research team aiming to develop ethically and legally acceptable strategies for conducting research about HIV treatment and prevention during pregnancy.

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

Henry received her BA from the University of Virginia, her MSc from Oxford University, her JD from Yale Law School, and her PhD from the University of Virginia. She was the founder and editor-in-chief of the Yale Journal of Health Policy, Law, and Ethics. She completed post-doctoral fellowships in bioethics and health policy at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health and at Georgetown Law Center, respectively. She also clerked for the Honorable Judith Rogers of the US Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit and was a fellow in the National Institutes of Health's Office of Human Subjects Research.

ANI B. SATZ, Professor of Law, Emory University School of Law; Professor of Public Health, Rollins School of Public Health; Affiliated Professor, Goizueta Business School; Senior Faculty Fellow, Center for Ethics

Professor Ani B. Satz is a regulatory health lawyer, philosopher, and professor of law at Emory University School of Law. She teaches torts, health law, disability law, animal law, genetics and the law, and law and vulnerability. In addition to her position at Emory Law, Satz holds a faculty appointment at Emory's Rollins School of Public Health and is a senior faculty fellow at the Center for Ethics. Additionally, she is an affiliated professor at Goizueta Business School. Satz's scholarship has been published in journals including the Michigan Law Review; Washington & Lee Law Review; Emory Law Journal; Yale Journal of Health Policy, Law, and Ethics; and Washington Law Review. Her most recent scholarship addresses access to health care, disability discrimination, and the well-being of nonhuman animals from a law and ethics perspective.

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS

After completing her undergraduate degree at the University of Tulsa, Satz was a Fulbright Postgraduate Research Scholar at Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. She holds a JD from the University of Michigan School of Law and a PhD in philosophy from Monash University, which she completed while she was a fellow at Princeton University. Satz clerked for the Honorable Jane R. Roth of the US Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Before coming to Emory, Satz lectured at Monash University Medical School and Yale University in the Philosophy Department and the Ethics, Politics, and Economics Program. She was also a visiting professor at Georgetown University Law Center. Satz is currently chair of the Section on Animal Law and served as 2014 chair of the Section on Law, Medicine and Health Care and 2009 chair of the Section on Disability Law of the Association of American Law Schools.

POLLY J. PRICE, Associate Dean of Faculty, Professor of Law and Global Health, Emory University

Professor Polly J. Price joined Emory University

School of Law in 1995. In 2013, she was awarded a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation for work in public health law. During the same year, Price received the Ben F. Johnson Faculty Excellence Award, which is a triennial recognition awarded by Emory University School of Law. Price teaches citizenship and immigration law, torts, legislation and regulation, American legal history, global public health law, and Latin American legal systems at Emory. Additionally, Price served as a visiting professor at Vanderbilt Law School and as the Frances Hare Visiting Professor of Tort Law at the University of Alabama. Price is the author of two books and numerous articles on American legal history, citizenship, property rights, and the judiciary. Her most recent book, Judge Richard S. Arnold: A Legacy of Justice on the Federal Bench, includes a forward by Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg and a blurb on the front cover by former President Bill Clinton.

Price graduated from Emory University with a BA and an MA. While a student at Emory University, she was a Bobby Jones Scholar. Price was an honors graduate of Harvard Law School, and a teaching fellow in a Harvard undergraduate course while she was a student. She clerked for Judge Richard S. Arnold of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. Following her clerkship, she practiced law for several years at King & Spalding in Atlanta and Washington, DC. Price was an invited speaker at the first Global Forum on Statelessness at The Hague in 2014. Under the auspices of the US State Department's Rule of Law Project, Price was the US representative in Pretoria, South Africa, at the Equality Law Conference for South African Judges and Magistrates.

MARY HOLLAND, Research Scholar and Director, Graduate Lawyering Program, New York University

Mary Holland's areas of research at New York University School of Law include globalization of legal education, international human rights law, post-communist Eurasian legal development, vaccine safety law, and vaccine injury compensation. She taught international law courses at Columbia Law School and has served as a consultant to the Aspen Institute Justice and Society Program. Holland's recent scholarship has been published in The